When Saul inquired of the Lord, the Lord did not answer him, not by dreams, or by Urim, or by prophets. TOMORROW: WILLIAM BELDEN NOBLE LECTURE
Joshua DuBois, former Special Assistant to President Obama and Executive Director of the White House Office of Faith-Based and Neighborhood Partnerships and author of The President’s Devotional, will deliver the 2014 William Belden Noble Lecture tomorrow night at 7:00 p.m. in the Memorial Church. His lecture is titled “Approaching the Ledge: Why America needs a crisis of faith — and why, in order to save religion, we must be willing to let it die.”

Joshua DuBois will explore the idea that we live in a time where faith exists without crisis, a coddled religious environment where God is not trusted to do God-sized things. As a result, some of the most significant social, political, and moral challenges we confront as a nation remain unsolved. Profiling leaders who have embraced deep crises of faith in the past — from the Civil Rights Movement to the present day — Mr. DuBois will plot a crisis-driven way forward that might finally address some of the most intractable problems we face. The lecture is free and open to the public.

MUSIC NOTES

This morning it is a pleasure to welcome the Chapel Choir of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, under the direction of Richard Latham, who sing alongside the Harvard University Choir. The choir gave a marvelous concert in Memorial Church last night, and today marks the final leg of its East-Coast tour.

The Kyrie and Agnus Dei are by the prolific Flemish composer Orlande de Lassus, who composed over sixty settings of the mass ordinary. Lassus was a truly cosmopolitan composer: he spent his early life in Italy and Belgium, followed by an appointment as Maestro di cappella to the Duke of Bavaria in Munich. The beautiful double-choir Missa “Bella Amphitrit’ altera” was probably composed around 1580, and is based loosely on a popular song by the same title: the opening phrase of this song appears at the start of each movement.

The offertory anthem is a beautiful setting of Jean Sibelius’s famous Finlandia; the communion motet is Mozart’s exquisite “Ave verum Corpus” — one of the composer’s final compositions, it was written for a choir in the spa town of Baden in June 1791.

The Passacaglia in C Minor is one of Johann Sebastian Bach’s most important works for the organ, and one that stands alone in that composer's oeuvre. Passacaglia form — in which a bass ostinato is subjected to continuous variations — was a popular compositional idiom of the baroque era, and Bach’s example soon served as a model for later composers. The eight-bar ostinato appears in the bass for the first eight and last five variations; in the ninth through fifteenth variations it becomes highly ornamented and is frequently concealed. The work is crowned by a double fugue that grows out of the final variation.

A musical prodigy, Olivier Messiaen was admitted to the Paris Conservatory at age eleven, where he studied with Dupré and Dukas. In 1930 he was appointed principal organist of Saint Trinité church in Paris, a position he held until the early 1970s. Messiaen’s music incorporates non-traditional scales, non-western rhythms, and techniques intended to suspend the perception of time. The composer’s deep spirituality, rooted in his unswerving Catholic faith, is the foundation of all his compositions; today’s postlude, “Vision of the Eternal Church,” is a slow-moving depiction of a unified church, past, present, and future.

FAITH & LIFE FORUM

The next Faith & Life Forum will be held on Sunday, April 13 at 9:30 a.m. The Reverend Dr. Lucy A. Forster-Smith, Sedgwick Chaplain to the University and Senior Minister in the Memorial Church, will give the presentation.

NEXT SUNDAY’S SERVICE

Next Sunday is the Sunday of the Passion or Palm Sunday. The preacher will be the Reverend Dr. Lucy A. Forster-Smith, Sedgwick Chaplain to the University and Senior Minister in the Memorial Church.
