MUSIC NOTES

To celebrate the Opening of Term, our returning Sunday Choir members present jubilant choruses from two well-known oratorios. The Creation remains Joseph Haydn’s most popular work today, as it was in his lifetime; completed in 1798, it is a majestic narration of the Genesis story. “Awake the Harp” describes the culmination of the third day of creation; its choral writing is reminiscent of Handel’s English oratorios — with a large-scale central fugato — while the harmonic language is firmly rooted in the classical style.

George Frideric Handel’s epic oratorio Samson is based on John Milton’s meditation on the biblical figure, Samson Agonistes. Following the destruction of the temple and the death of the protagonist, it is decreed that Samson’s deed has brought redemption to God’s people. “Let Their Celestial Concerts All Unite” is the oratorio’s closing hymn of thanks and praise in recognition of Samson’s heroic act.

Johann Sebastian Bach’s monumental keyboard study (Clavierübung) consists of four publications of the composer’s keyboard music. The Prelude and Fugue in E-flat Major serve as bookends to part III of the collection, which is devoted to organ music. The entire work (which also includes chorale preludes based around the movements of the Lutheran Mass) can be viewed as a summation of keyboard techniques from Palestrina onwards, in which Bach pays homage to many of his great predecessors. The prelude derives stylistically from both French and Italian models: the dotted rhythms and flamboyance of the prelude are reminiscent of the French overture, while the form of the work is taken from the Italian concerto. It is built around three themes, which share the same pulse, but are stylistically very different. Conversely the fugue uses three sections clearly delineated by changes of meter, but whose themes are stylistically similar. The three sections build within themselves; at the same time the entire fugue increases in tension until the dramatic final entry of the pedal, which reiterates the opening subject.

NEXT SUNDAY’S SERVICE

Next Sunday is the Sixteenth Sunday after Pentecost. The preacher will be the Reverend Dr. Alice W. Hunt, President, Chicago Theological Seminary and Associate Professor of Hebrew Bible and Theological Education.
